CHAMBERLIN IS WOUNDED

Collapse of Revolt of Young Extremists Declared Officially Today

TOKYO, Feb. 29. — (UP) — A man thought dead headed Japan's government today. A second man, also listed officially as dead for 3½ days, held the high post of grand chamberlain in the imperial household.

Coincident with the collapse of a revolt of young extremist army officers, it was disclosed officially that Premier Katsuo Okada and Grand Chamberlain Soroku Suzuki, who had been listed as among the five liberal statesmen alive.

Admiral Okada was not even wounded. In his place his brother-in-law, Col. Natsuo, walked stiffly into the garden of the prime minister's residence, presented himself to the execution squad of the rebel force, and was shot down in cold blood.

His body lay there guarded by rebels for many hours. The official announcement was made that Okada was among the five men "executed" by the rebels for their liberalistic politics.

Okada himself escaped from the house. Coincident with the rebel surrender this afternoon, it was disclosed that on Wednesday afternoon, while Natsuo's body remained in the garden under a rebel guard, the Prime Minister went to the imperial palace and conferred with Emperor Hirohito. Fumio Goto had been acting prime minister because it was thought his chief, Admiral Okada, was among the assassins' victims.

SANDPILE GREETED CITY MOTORISTS; TRACKS REMOVED

Autoists were driving through a "sandpile" Saturday at Court and Watt-sts as a result of WPA employees removing the old tracks and switches of the interurban lines. The tracks have now been removed from Northridge-rd as far south as the first alley south of Watt-st.

Work in the downtown district brought out numerous complaints from merchants. They contended other branches of the project should be continued before more of the street was torn up, especially the downtown district.

WPA officials explained they hoped to start paving early next week and would rush the work as swiftly as possible and one of the hardest parts of the job was removing rails. Until weather permits paving, they explained there was no other job on which the men could be transferred and they did not want them to lose time.

Traffic on two state highways, routes 22 and 56, west of the river, was resumed Saturday morning following a three foot drop in the flood waters.

At 9 a. m. Saturday the official measurement at the bridge was 11½ feet above normal, Dr. H. R. Clarke reported. Friday morning the river was 14½ feet above normal. With no heavy rains reported north of the city the stream was expected to continue receding.

NAPOLEON, O., Feb. 29 — (UP)

The danger of serious floods in the Scioto river basin of northwestern Ohio had passed today. Grand Rapids, a town of 589, thirty miles upstream from Toledo, bore the brunt of the river's overflow late yesterday when an ice gorge broke above the town, sending muddy water and big chunks of ice tumbling over the levee into the business district.

Water stood four to six feet deep in the main part of the town for several hours. Civilian conservation corps workers aided residents in removing their furnishing to higher ground.

Then, at 2:30 a. m. today, an ice pack seven miles long broke suddenly. The flood waters at Grand Rapids and other river towns receded rapidly.

Napoleon and Waterville lowlands were flooded when an ice gorge at Damascus bridge broke.

The Napoleon river front was under water for several hundred feet. Residents of 20 houses were forced to leave. Several houses were marooned at Waterville where the river rose 50 feet beyond its banks and stopped by higher ground.

Although property damage was severe, there were no human casualties.

Ashville and New Holland basketball teams will match thrills this evening in the Athletic Club gymnasium for the tournament championship of Pickaway-co. By winning, Ashville can make a clean sweep of county honors this season since the Harrison-twp team, undefeated, won the league championship.

Vision and Service

Jesus sent his disciples out to preach and heal the sick and when they returned he took them into a desert to rest. But great multitudes followed them and Jesus taught them and then fed them in the wilderness

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Later Jesus asked his disciples, "Who say ye that I am?" Peter answered, "The Christ of God." Then Jesus began to tell them of his cross and sufferings soon to be experienced in Jerusalem. They were saddened at these words of Jesus.

A week later Jesus took Peter, James and John up on a mountain where as he prayed his face and garments became radiantly white and glorious. Moses and Elijah appeared to talk with Jesus about his crucifixion.

Peter suggested staying on the mount. But Jesus brought them down to the valley to heal a terribly afflicted boy. Thus the vision of the mount prepared for service in the valley.

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 1 is Luke 9:1-62, especially 28-43, the Golden Text being John 15:5, "He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit.")

OUR LORD once said to his disciples "My Father worketh even until now, and I work." In this unceasing work he expects us to share with him. There is no excuse for spiritual unemployment in Christian service.

The Call to Service

Our Lord not only calls us to serve, but he instructs and adequately empowers us for that service.

"And he called the twelve together, and gave them power and authority over all devils and to cure diseases. And he sent them forth to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick. . . . And the apostles, when they were returned, declared unto him what things they had done." With what sense of achievement they returned to report to him the results of their service! They were in need of rest, and he retired with them into a desert place for rest, only to be interrupted by the multitudes seeking his ministry. To serve these Jesus gladly sacrificed rest and comfort to teach and even feed the thousands who needed the service that only he and his disciples could give.

Creed and Service

But we must know the Christ we serve before we can tell others of him. So Jesus examines his servants upon this important point, and asks, "Who say ye that I am?" And Peter, answering said, "The Christ of God." To this clearly confessed creed Jesus added the new revelation of his cross as essential not only for him but for every disciple who would follow him in service: "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." The cross is forever to be the pattern and the dynamic for service.

The Cross in Glory

The whole idea of the cross was offensive to our Lord's disciples. They saw no glory in it for them nor for their Master. So a week later he took Peter, James and John with him into a high mountain, where, "as he was praying, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment became white and dazzling. And behold, there talked with him two men, which were Moses and Elijah; who appeared in glory, and spake of his decease which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem." Here were the greatest men of ages gone by speaking with the gloriously glorified Christ of that cross which has so shortly before seemed so offensive to the disciples. It was a sunburst of deity shining through Christ's humanity pointing him and them to Calvary and the glorious service Christ was there to accomplish in leading the race in a spiritual "exodus" from sin and death.

The Vision and Service

Peter suggested that they remain on the mount enjoying its glory. But visions are not given of God for man's entertainment but to equip for further service. At the foot of that mount of vision was a father with an afflicted son for whose relief the other apostles without Christ were impotent. This was the call of service from the mount of divine vision to the valley of human need, and Christ responded. In this spirit "he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem," challenging men to follow with undivided and undeviating determination, saying, "No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."

SNOW SAVES FIRE VICTIM

BETHANY, Mo.—(UP)—Ed Nickerson, highway employee, got a snow bath he couldn't resent. When he entered the door of a highway department warehouse, he was struck by a can of burning gasoline. Nickerson, enveloped in flames, was rolled in the snow, escaping injury.

Congress has decided that it's O. K. to call a lawmaker "asinine." Most citizens can think of several other adjectives that are also appropriate.

The Bottle-Hitter

Daddy likes to smoke his pipe
And Momma likes to sew,
But the grandest after-dinner
Sport I know
Is to hit the bottle.
Sometimes I hold it in my hands,
Sometimes I rest it on my feet,
YOU couldn't do that! But
I like it—it's nice and sweet
I always tip the bottle up
To see if there's any more,
But there never is and so
I just throw it on the floor.

ABOUT GROWING OLD

THE psychologist who said the other day that old age and death is a mere matter of psychology, seems to be skipping about the edge of sophistry. To claim full credit for modern knowledge which has lengthened human life five years in two generations is one thing, but to reach from that for a logical conclusion that life may be prolonged indefinitely by mere psychological effort is something different. This would be comforting to those who desire to live to be 200 years old, but before men reach that age other knowledge than merely how to wish for prolonged existence will be necessary.

To fix an arithmetical program by which human life is to be lengthened according to the ratio of the first modern steps is to invite disappointment. Some time possibly, men may live to be much older than in this generation, but when that time arrives human beings will be found living as well as thinking in a manner far from the habits of 1936. Physical death and old age is something more than a simple matter of psychology, at least in man's present state of knowledge.

WHOM THE GODS DESTROY

IT is with growing frequency that Germany of the present day produces evidence of diminishing intellectuality, if not of downright folly, which may with reason be accepted as indicative of moral decay. One of the most recent signs of intellectual disintegration is the decision of Nazi pastors to rewrite the Bible in order that it may be brought into harmony with their anti-Jewish feelings and professed belief that Christ, after all, was not Jewish.

Details of this project has not as yet been made public but there is reason to assume, Nazi temper and rationalism being what it is, that Herr Hitler and his minions will not hesitate to add to or subtract from, or even discard altogether, the Ten Commandments, and rewrite the Sermon on the Mount.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

As federal power plants—attached to the great dams—sweep ahead, the industrial status of the United States may change.

These power plants and dams diffuse not merely electricity over a vast area but renourish the soil. Thus, what may occur? Well, what Henry Ford once said would occur.

There will be a decentralization of industry from the large cities. Industry will go to the rural regions, where a man may till the soil as well as operate the machines.

It is against this that New England so bitterly fights. It is this that disturbs the highly industrialized cities of the north.

They will not be able to compete. With lower fuel costs, with less expensive land near these great dams in the south and in the northwest and in the southwest, industries will gravitate there.

As Henry Ford also often has pointed out, when production costs go down, then we shall have the prosperity we now try to obtain by falsely upholding prices. It is lower costs that will spread work.

Plus, the liberals add, increased participation of the worker and the tenant farmer in earnings and in-

As far back as 1848 a walk-out occurred in a Democratic convention in New York, when two factions, the so-called Barnburners and Hunkers, became embroiled in a bitter fight over the control of the state presidential delegation.

The convention voted to divide the delegation between the two groups, whereupon the Barnburners "took a walk".

Most newspapermen will incline to the view that, until the legal profession puts its own house in order, the press can scarcely be subjected to recommendation or orders imposed from the outside.

In comparison with the average run of shysters and ambulance chasers, practicing journalists represent the acme of ethical conduct. Legalistic clowning, moreover, is responsible for a vast majority of abuses perpetrated in the name of justice.

"NOT QUITE. You came here, you know," remarked Selwyn Marsh when Thora said she had reached the end of her story about her past.

"Why, yes. After I sent Eric home. . . I thought his mother would want that. . . I tried to find something to do. It wasn't very easy because I had no references and didn't know anybody. I tried all sorts of places. Then, one day, I happened to see Miss Taggart's in the paper and inquired to me that I had been overlooking my best chance. So I went there."

"I see."

"I had to tell you this, Mr. Marsh, to try to make you understand that you mustn't do. . . what you think you're going to. I know what you mean to Wilma. . . and she's so young. Don't you see?"

"Umph." Selwyn swung around in his chair and stared down at the sleeping dachshund for a long minute. When he raised his eyes, there was a quizzical light in them. "I'll tell you what I'll do, Miss Dahl. I'll strike a bargain with you."

"I am not sure I should," Thora reflected. "It's not fair to Miss Marsh."

"Fair?" Selwyn snorted. "She doesn't know what that means! Why, she had the nerve to come in here today and tell me that she had invited this bounder to my house. . . that he would show up almost any time now! That's what started it all. Coolest thing I ever heard of. She acted as if she thought I'd kiss him!"

Thora smiled in spite of herself. "What is the name of this dreadful person. . . who is coming to see you?"

"I'll never tell you," Selwyn growled. "It's something like. . . Barabbas."

There was a distinct twinkle in the blue eyes now. "That is what gave you a bad impression, Mr. Marsh."

"No, it isn't. I don't like him and don't intend to. But if you have decided he's coming, you may as well fix a room for him. Make it as far from mine as you can. And you'd better talk it over with Wilma. I'll tell her it's all right, as far as I'm concerned."

"But I think Miss Marsh should make the arrangements," Thora objected. "I have not decided to stay."

"I've decided," Selwyn explained. "It's all settled. Whatever you do."

DIET AND HEALTH

What Factors in Life Cause Nervous Diseases?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WE MAY well ask, "What are the factors in life which are conducive to the development of functional or nervous diseases?"

Generally speaking, diseases of this nature are hereditary or acquired. We inherit blue eyes, brown hair, body type and weight, bald heads, big noses, and all the other physical characteristics which make people interesting. Our traits of character, however, and the stability of our nervous system, are largely a matter of contact and experience with others.

Granting this to be true, how fortunate is the child born and reared by sensible parents possessing good control of their nervous system, and how unfortunate is the child of neurotic, hysterical, or highly emotional parents.

Many children emulate their parents because knowledge is largely acquired in the early impressionable years by mimicking others. Such children are figuratively battered about between excess love and unreasonable anger; between fear and bravado; between over-solicitous attention and neglect. Even such natural functions as eating, sleeping and elimination receive an unnatural and unwarranted attention, and the child is tremendously impressed with the importance of a lost meal, a coated tongue, a scratch on the hand, a fall, will be all right. . . . Just leave me out of it. . . . Wilma I said so. Don't bother me any more. . . . It'll be bad enough, later."

This last was said so dismissively that there was nothing left for Thora to do but leave the room. She was confused over this latest turn of events. It all had worked out so differently than she had expected. Her own story had come out in a pent-up rush, with but one reason or hope—to try to keep Mr. Marsh from doing so unjust a thing to his daughter. To save Wilma from the hardship she herself had endured at the hands of a stubborn father. She had succeeded. . . . with totally unexpected results, as far as her own status was concerned.

Moved by a sudden impulse, she mounted the stairs and walked directly to Wilma's door. "Come in," said a muffled voice, in answer to the housekeeper's tap on the panel.

Wilma must have been lying across the bed. When Thora first saw her, she was propped up on one hand. Her eyes were swollen and her face flushed. A wadded handkerchief was clutched in her feeble hand. "Well, what do you want?" she demanded, when she saw who her caller was. Thora was struck anew with the resemblance of the girl to her father. That question, that trick of frowning. . . .

"I'm sorry to disturb you, Miss Marsh," she began quietly. "But Mr. Marsh was just telling me that you expected a guest very soon. I was going to suggest the east room, but I thought I would like to ask you first." The room in question was across the hall from Selwyn's, at a safe distance.

Wilma stared for a moment without replying. She rose to her feet and came forward slowly.

"Did my father say who the guest was?" she demanded.

Thora assumed the role of the well-trained housekeeper. . . . in self-defense, this time.

"I'm sorry, but Mr. Marsh seemed unable to recall the name. He said it was a gentleman."

"He said that?" Wilma's dark eyes widened. "Are you sure?"

"Quite. In fact," she said, "he said he'll be all right if I prepare the east room for Mr. . . ."

"Barabbas," Wilma supplied mechanically.

"Now, I know that is the one whom Mr. Marsh meant," Thora remarked with a slight smile. "He tried to say 'it.' She turned away with a mechanical, 'Thank you.'"

"Miss Dahl!"

"Come here, please. I. . . I don't understand. I told father a while ago that Alec was coming and he. . . he blew up. You must have heard him, if you were in the house. He informed me that when Alec came, he would find me waiting out at the gate with my bags packed. He couldn't get it into his head that I might possibly care for the poor boy. Just because Alec wasn't a Son of the Revolution, or something, he was lousy. . . . all that sort of thing. Unless I called everything off, I was out of luck. . . . he even pulled that old one about being out of with a shilling. And now, you're trying to tell me. . . I just don't get it."

"Everything appears to be all right now," Thora assured her. She had no wish to be questioned on the subject.

"Well, if it's all right. . . you did something. It's a miracle. Father doesn't change his mind like that. . . I'm the same way. I won't ask you any questions. It's your business. But I wish you knew. . . ."

"It's only that your father changed his mind, after he had time to think everything over. That is all, I'm sure."

"Well, if you think that, you don't know him as well as I imagined you did. But I'm a good sport, too. To Thora's amazement, she held out her hand with a frank gesture, flashing her white teeth in a good-natured smile. "I've been rather a beast. Forget it, will you?"

"I have not blamed you. . . for anything."

"That's pretty square of you. I won't forget. Thanks."

When Thora went downstairs, she encountered Marsh and Pfefferhause in the lower hall. The two of them, apparently, were starting out for a stroll. Selwyn paused long enough to ask gruffly:

"Well, did you see her?"

"Yes, sir."

"Storm all over?"

"I think so." A mischievous light shone in the blue eyes. "The name," Thora remarked demurely, "is Bab-

CONTRACT BRIDGE

EACH LOST A GAME

IT FREQUENTLY is of vital importance to make clear what is desired of partner. Neglect to post partner may cost game. It is, of course, equally important to note what partner desires, and to rigidly carry out instructions, unless a reason for doing otherwise exists, without partner's knowledge. It was a coincidence that two similar defenses followed in succession. In five hands followed in succession, it was remarkable that carelessness, first of North, then of South, cost them two consecutive games.

West, 2-Spades; North, not vulnerable, 3-Hearts; East, 2-Spades; West, 4-Spades.

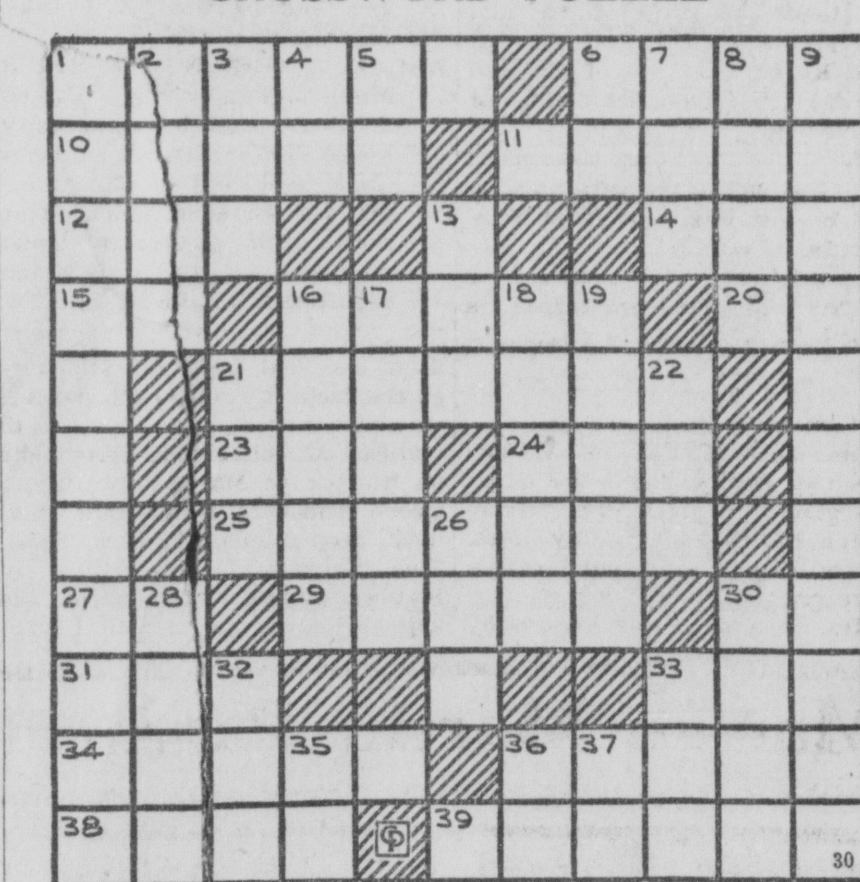

North had acknowledged his error on the previous hand, so that when he played his 3 of hearts under partner's opening lead of the Ace of hearts there was no excuse for South's mistake in continuing with that suit. He should have led a diamond. Two diamonds and two hearts would have defeated the contract, but South led his second heart, hoping to obtain a ruff, then to lead the diamond. North led a third round of hearts, but declarer ruffed high and made 4-odd.

The Q of diamonds was overtaken with dummy's K, then two added rounds of winning diamonds allowed declarer to discard his last losing spade and one of his hearts so that he just fulfilled his game contract, doubled. Had North asked for a second lead of spades the two tricks in that suit and the Ace of hearts would have defeated the contract a trick.

Bidding went: West, 1-Heart; North, 1-Spade; East, 3-Clubs; West, 3-Diamonds; East, 4-Clubs; West, 4-Clubs, that North doubled.

South led his K of spades. His partner should have played the 8, to ask a continuance of the suit, but carelessly he played the 2, asking a shift. Diamonds offered the only shift. Dutifully South led his lowest diamond. East's Ace won the trick. Dummy's Q of trumps took the next trick. The K of clubs was led and overtaken with declarer's Ace, in case trumps failed to break.

ASHVILLE, NEW HOLLAND MEET IN CAGE FINAL

Both Teams Victorious in Friday's Semifinal Games, 30-9, 29-21

Holland coach, will use Speakman and Hosler at forwards, Landman at the tipoff spot, and Herb Dennis and Chuck Ater at guards.

The girls' finals will start at 7 o'clock with the third place boys' game between Pickaway-twp and Muhlenberg-twp an hour later.

The championship game will start at 9 o'clock as possible.

In Friday evening's girls game, Ashville defeated Darby-twp 21 to 8 to win third place.

Teams Start Slowly

Ashville boys had an easy time with Muhlenberg after a slow start. Neither team scored in the first period but in the second Ashville opened up to take a 10-1 lead with Wimpy Walden, freshman guard, slipping loose under the net for three buckets. Dean's free toss was the only Darbyville point.

The second half saw Muhlenberg unable to stop Chuck Young, the Ashville center hitting the hoop for six buckets. The third period ended 20-1.

In the final session, with Ashville's reserves in the game, Muhlenberg scored four buckets with Diz Dean and Buck Ankrum each hitting twice from the court.

Muhlenberg played a fighting and clean game but was unable to cope with the superior passing of the Ashville team.

New Holland was forced to turn on the heat the whole way to put down the battling Pickaway Pirates.

Warner's Tough

Pickaway took a 4-3 lead in the first period when Anderson and Dunkle hit the hoop. Herb Dennis kept New Holland in the game with one from the field and one from the charity line.

The second quarter saw New Holland sweep into the lead, 12-10, with Dennis scoring three more and Ater, Speakman and Hosler connecting for goals. Warner, Pickaway's mite-sized center, put on one of the finest defensive exhibitions in the tournament when he held big Ey Landman, who stood head and shoulders above him, without a point. Every time a pass went Landman's direction Warner was there, too.

Herb Dennis and Peewee Speakman turned on the third quarter to boost New Holland's margin to seven points and the final saw Pickaway making desperate but futile attempt to keep pace.

Dennis, a guard, and Speakman, a forward, tallied 22 of New Holland's 29 points. Pickaway's scoring was evenly divided.

Ashville girls outplayed Darby-twp from the go with Esther Ward and Maxine Young hitting the hoop for 13 and six points. Kuhlwein cashed in a two-pointer in the first half at a time when it was needed. Ward, Ashville's captain divided her scoring seven and six, the larger number in the first period.

Skinner was outstanding for the losing team.

Babb Forced to Limit

Kroger Babb, referee, was kept on his toes during the entire evening with the New Holland-Pickaway game keeping the pressure on from start to finish.

OHIO STATE, NOTRE DAME CAGE GAME IS ADVANCED

COLUMBUS, Feb. 29—The basketball game originally scheduled for Wednesday, March 4, between Ohio State and Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind. has been advanced to Tuesday, it was announced here today.

Ohio State plays at Bloomington Monday and the Notre Dame contest was moved up to prevent the Bucks from losing an additional day from classes.

Every member of the local team passed the 500-mark while Miller was the only invader able to go that high.

The scores:

Coca Colas 2,692

Chillicothe 2,502

Benbow 152 158 167 477

About This And That In Many Sports

Spring Grid Drills

Coach Jack Landrum of Circleville high school intends to get a line on his gridlers before the season opens next fall—He's called spring football practice to start March 9—All boys who intend to play football next school year are to report—Those seeking manager's jobs should make their appearance, too, but what we want is more football players and fewer managers—If some healthy-looking lad reports as a manager, you can bet your nickles Jack Landrum's going to have him in a football uniform ***

Monroe Daddy of Stars

What a basketball team this would have been—Four of the best cagers in the county added the Monroe-twp school together in the grades—Now they are in four different schools—The youths are Young of Ashville, Hanson of Williamsport, Dean of Muhlenberg, and Long of Monroe.

Herman Kauber Visits

Herman Kauber, former Williamsport, and brother of the Ashville mentor, attended the game Friday evening—He is now coaching at Dresden ***

Pickaway-co Team Out

The Pickaway-co team at Ohio State university took it on the chin this week when it met a superior Tuscarawas-co team—The score was 21-9  Riker starred for the Tuscarawas crew while Graves did most of the local scoring—The defeat eliminates the Pickaway team from any further chance at the campus title ***

Ashville Cheers

One of the real features of the tournament this year is this: Before the New Holland-Pickaway game last night the Ashville cheering section gave a yell for New Holland—Naturally Ashville didn't want New Holland to win but the cheer showed a lot of sportsmanship ***

Of Ashville Girls

The outstanding job of coaching this year?—Here it is: Ashville girls—Miss Casteele, new coach, was faced with a real problem when she took over her duties—Every one of the six girls on last year's team was lost by graduation—Material was inexperienced but the team made the tournament and won third place ***

Bucks Have Chance to Gain Tie in Standing

COLUMBUS, Feb. 29—(UP)—Ohio State and Illinois, beyond championship consideration but each with hopes of finishing third in the current Big Ten basketball race, meet here tonight.

Illinois has won six conference games and lost four to tie with Michigan for the present hold on third place. Ohio with an even break in ten contests is one game to the rear.

In their first game at Champaign, the Bucks and Illinois played one of the weirdest contests in Western conference history. Ohio was the victor by an 18 to 13 score.

The five Illinois will start against Ohio will have Harry Combes and Jim Vopica at the forward; Bob Riegel at center; Wib Henry and Howard Braun at guards.

Combes is one of the conference's leading scorers. Riegel made the all-Big Ten team a season ago as a sophomore.

Against this group Coach Harold Olson will start his regular quintet of Captain Warren Whitlinger and Jim McDonald at forwards; Earl Thomas at center, and "Tippy" Dye and Jack Radebaugh at the guards.

Since Illinois and Ohio started their basketball series, the Illini have had a decided edge, winning 24 of the 36 contests played.

MIAMIA FIVE HAS CHANCE TO END BEARCAT HOPES

COLUMBUS, Feb. 29—Miami university will attempt to wreck the University of Cincinnati's hopes for an undisputed Buckeye conference basketball championship when the quintets meet tonight at Oxford in a contest that headlines a 10 game schedule involving state teams.

Beaten 36 to 34 in an earlier game at Cincinnati, Miami faces the task of accomplishing a feat it hasn't been able to turn since the Buckeye was formed, namely, beating the Bearcats at Oxford.

A victory for Cincinnati tonight would give, Coach Tay Brown's five the title. However, if the Bearcats lose Ohio Wesleyan can tie for the championship if it defeats the University of Dayton Monday at Delaware.

CONFERENCE TO DISCUSS SPEARS, MEANWELL CASE

CHICAGO, Feb. 29—(UP)—The recent dismissal of Dr. Clarence W. Spears, head football coach, and Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, athletic director, by university of Wisconsin regents was expected to be discussed today by the Western conference faculty committee.

The question was whether the regents violated a big ten rule by overriding recommendations of the Wisconsin faculty committee on athletics. The Wisconsin faculty group had recommended the retention of Meanwell and the dismissal of Spears.

Dean George A. Works of Chicago, chairman of the conference committee, predicted two weeks ago that his group would investigate the Wisconsin situation. He pointed out that a conference regulation vests control of athletics in the faculties of member schools.

Originally today's meeting was called to discuss broadcasting of Big Ten athletic events "and such other matters as may arise."

OHIOAN ESTABLISHING NEW KANSAS SHOOTING MARK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 29—(UP)—Joe Hiestand, Hillsboro, O., today was possessor of a new record in the interstate trapshoot books. The Ohio farm boy yesterday made history in the gunning world by knocking the old record off the board in the 100 target contest of the 32nd annual interstate tournament.

Starting with two 25s and finishing with two 24s, Hiestand scored a 98, only two down. The old record of 96 was made by Frank Hughes of Chicago.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

America's favorite baritone, Lawrence Tibbett, returns to the screen in "Metropolitan," the 20th Century production, coming Sunday to the Grand theatre, as the star of a picture that sets new high standards in musicals.

In the course of the dramatic comedy, which traces the adventures of a young singer in pursuit of fame and romance, Tibbett sings selections from the operas, "Carmen," "Pagliacci" and "The Barber of Seville," as well as a duo of popular numbers.

Romantic complications beset Tibbett's path in "Metropolitan." In love with Virginia Bruce, he cannot reveal his inclinations because Alice Brady loves him. She is a temperamental prima donna, and Tibbett's fate, and that of the company, hang on her good will.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Leave all your old notions about ghosts at home when you go down to the Cliftona theatre Sunday. For the spook who walks the screen in "The Ghost Goes West," Alexander Korda's gay new romantic comedy which came to town last night, is unlike any screen ghost you ever saw. He's handsome, he's charming and he has a decided way with the ladies.

The brilliant Robert Donat, who rose to world fame overnight as "The Count of Monte Cristo" and recently scored in "The 39 Steps," plays a dual role. He is seen both as Donald Glouire, an impoverished young Scotch highlander who is forced to sell his haunted ancestral castle to an American millionaire and also as the personable shade who strolls the castle halls.

The story, which Robert E. Sherwood adopted from a story by Eric Keown in London "Punch," takes an hilarious turn when the millionaire, played by Eugene Pallette, dismantles and transports the castle to America and the ghost goes along. When the shade of his ancestor begins walking the transatlantic luxury liner, his marked resemblance to Donald gets the latter into some side-splitting entanglements. But when his sweetheart Peggy, played by Jean Parker, begins mistaking the ghost for him, Donald realizes the time for action has come.

Chinese good luck charms are becoming increasingly popular. They have worked out so well, seems, in China.

WASHINGTON C.H. COUNCIL BARS HANDBILL PASSING

NEW ORDINANCE FIXES FINE FOR CODE VIOLATION

Advertising Matter Declared Nuisance and Fire Hazard By Officials

Handbill passing, an annoyance to housewives and the source of numerous complaints was practically "out" in Washington C. H., today following passage of an ordinance making the offense punishable by a $5 to $50 fine unless a permit is obtained from the police justice.

The ordinance is the same as one adopted in Wilmington a number of years ago to stop the nuisance.

It follows: "That the passing of hand bills and other advertising matter of any kind from house to house in the city of Washington is an injury, fire hazard and an annoyance to the public and the same is hereby declared to be a public nuisance.

"That for the protection of public health, peace, safety and morals, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to pass hand bills or to distribute from house to house in any manner whatsoever any advertising matter of any kind, without first obtaining written permission from the Police Justice of the City.

"That whoever violates the provisions of this ordinance shall be subject to a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50."

MT. STERLING, Feb. 29.—Under an ordinance passed by village councilmen, it will be unlawful to erect, within the limits of the fire zone, any building the outer walls of which are not constructed of non-combustible material, except temporary building as may be permitted by council.

It is also unlawful to rebuild, repair, or remodel any building not used for residence purposes, within the fire zone limits, which has been damaged to the extent of 50 per cent of its value as listed for taxation on the county a tax duplicate, unless the outer walls are of non-combustible material.

EDUCATOR SEES CHANGE

CHICAGO, Feb. 29.—(UP)—Modern novels such as "Arrow-smith" and "Growth of the Soil" should replace Julius Caesar in schools, John N. Washburne of Syracuse university told the Progressive Education association. The student will learn about modern social relationships elsewhere if schools continue to offer "such things as Caesar in place of vital, modern, comprehensible accounts of personal relationship," he said.

black and white ribbons were sent to Okada's home and condolences arrived from all over the world. It was recalled only tonight that the emperor had sent condolences to families of victims of the rebels but had sent no condolences to Okada's home.

Okada was at the imperial palace tonight conferring with other ministers of his government.

Suzuki Wounded

Suzuki was wounded. He was reported improving tonight. Hence the rebels killed only Korekiyo Takahashi, finance minister; Admiral Viscount Makoto Saito, lord keeper of the privy seal, and Gen. Jettaro Watanabe, inspector or general military education—or at least, they were still officially dead tonight.

Until the crisis was liquidated this afternoon, and Tokyo began returning to normal, the secret that two of the chief targets of the rebel assassins were alive was closely guarded.

Floral tributes were delivered along with condolences to the families of both.

Only tonight did the authorities permit the news to be known.

Suzuki's escape was due to his own good fortune. Okada lives, and is officially confirmed as still the country's prime minister, because of the deliberate heroic sacrifice of his soldier brother-in-law who went into the garden of his home and faced the rebels' blast of fire.

OHIO TOWN FLOODED

Napoleon, O., River Front in Danger, Forcing Residents to Move

Traffic on two state highways,
Routes 22 and 56, west of the river, was resumed Saturday morning following a three foot drop in the flood waters.

At 9 a. m. Saturday the official measurement at the bridge was 11.5 feet above normal, Dr.
H. R. Clarke reported. Friday morning the river was 14.6 feet above normal. With no heavy rains reported north of the city
the stream was expected to continue receding.

The highest temperature reading
Friday was 39 degrees and the lowest during the night 30 degrees.

NAPOLEON, O., Feb. 29.—(UP)—
The danger of serious floods in the Maumee river basin of northwestern Ohio had passed today.

Grand Rapids, a town of 589, thirty miles upstream from Toledo, bore the brunt of the river's overflow late yesterday when an ice gorge broke above the town, sending muddy water and big chunks of ice tumbling over the levee into the business district.

Water stood four to six feet deep in the main part of the town for several hours. Civilian conservation corps workers aided residents in removing their furnishings to higher ground.

Then, at 2:30 a. m. today, an ice pack seven miles long broke suddenly. The flood waters at Grand Rapids and other river towns receded rapidly.

Napoleon and Waterville lowlands were flooded when an ice gorge at Damascus bridge broke.

The Napoleon river front was under water for several hundred feet. Residents of 20 houses were forced to leave. Several houses were marooned at Waterville where the river rose 50 feet beyond its banks and stopped by higher ground.

Although property damage was severe, there were no human casualties.

STORY OF PRIVATIONS TOLD BY RESCUED MAN

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 29.—(UP)—
Otto Studer, 55, crawled over 600 feet of bobbing ice cakes and collapsed just as he reached rescuers who fought their way in a boat through a three mile ice gorge in the Kankakee river.

Suffering from hunger, thirst and exposure after spending 48 hours marooned on a table in a flooded garage, Studer was under the care of a physician today.

Chief of Police Nicholas J.
Fornango of Joliet led the rescue party to the summer cottage section 20 miles south of Joliet.

Studer, caretaker of the cottages, said he sought refuge in the garage early in the week and had lived on the table since Wednesday night without food, water or heat.

Vision and Service

Jesus sent his disciples out to preach and heal the sick and when they returned he took them into a desert to rest. But great multitudes followed them and Jesus taught them and then fed them in the wilderness.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Later Jesus asked his disciples, "Who say ye that I am?" Peter answered, "The Christ of God." Then Jesus began to tell them of his cross and sufferings soon to be experienced in Jerusalem. They were saddened at these words of Jesus.

A week later Jesus took Peter, James and John up on a mountain where as he prayed his face and garments became radiantly white and glorious. Moses and Elijah appeared to talk with Jesus about his crucifixion.

Peter suggested staying on the mount. But Jesus brought them down to the valley to heal a terribly afflicted boy. Thus the vision of the mount prepared for service in the valley.

Vision and Service

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 1 is Luke 9:1-62, especially 28-43, the Golden Text being John 15:5, "He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit.")

OUR LORD once said to his disciples "My Father worketh even until now, and I work." In this unceasing work he expects us to share with him. There is no excuse for spiritual unemployment in Christian service.

The Call to Service

Our Lord not only calls us to serve, but he instructs and adequately empowers us for that service. "And he called the twelve together, and gave them power and authority over all devils and to cure diseases. And he sent them forth to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick. . . . And the apostles, when they were returned, declared unto him what things they had done." With what sense of achievement they returned to report to him the results of their service! They were in need of rest, and he retired with them into a desert place for rest, only to be interrupted by the multitudes seeking his ministry. To serve these Jesus gladly sacrificed rest and comfort to teach and even feed the thousands who needed the service that only he and his disciples could give.

Creed and Service

But we must know the Christ we serve before we can tell others of him. So Jesus examines his servants upon this important point, and asks, "Who say ye that I am?" And Peter, answering said, "The Christ of God." To this clearly confessed creed Jesus added the new revelation of his cross as essential not only for him but for every disciple who would follow him in service. "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." The cross is forever to be the pattern and the dynamic for service.

The Cross in Glory

The whole idea of the cross was offensive to our Lord's disciples. They saw no glory in it for them nor for their Master. So a week later he took Peter, James and John with him into a high mountain, where, "as he was praying, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment became white and dazzling. And behold, there talked with him two men, which were Moses and Elijah; who appeared in glory, and spake of his decease which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem." Here were the greatest men of ages gone by speaking with the radiantly glorified Christ of that cross which has so shortly before seemed so offensive to the disciples. It was a sunburst of deity shining through Christ's humanity pointing him and them to Calvary and the glorious service Christ was there to accomplish in leading the race in a spiritual "exodus" from sin and death.

The Vision and Service

Peter suggested that they remain on the mount enjoying its glory. But visions are not given of God for man's entertainment but to equip for further service. At the foot of that mount of vision was a father with an afflicted son for whose relief the other apostles without Christ were impotent. This was the call of service from the mount of divine vision to the valley of human need, and Christ responded. In this spirit "he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem," challenging "men" to follow with undivided and undeviating determination, saying, "No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God."

Daddy likes to smoke his pipe
And Mommie likes to sew,
But the grandest after-dinner Sport I know
Is to hit the bottle.
Sometimes I hold it in my hands,
Sometimes I rest it on my feet,
YOU couldn't do that! But I like it—it's nice and sweet
I always tip the bottle up
To see if there's any more,
But there never is and so
I just throw it on the floor.

ABOUT GROWING OLD

THE psychologist who said the other day that old age and death is a mere matter of psychology, seems to be skipping about the edge of sophistry. To claim full credit for modern knowledge which has lengthened human life five years in two generations is one thing, but to reach from that for a logical conclusion that life may be prolonged indefinitely by mere psychological effort is something different. This would be comforting to those who desire to live to be 200 years old, but before men reach that age other knowledge than merely how to wish for prolonged existence will be necessary.

To fix an arithmetical program by which human life is to be lengthened according to the ratio of the first modern steps is to invite disappointment. Some time possibly, men may live to be much older than in this generation, but when that time arrives human beings will be found living as well as thinking in a manner far from the habits of 1936. Physical death and old age is something more than a simple matter of psychology, at least in man's present state of knowledge.

WHOM THE GODS DESTROY

IT is with growing frequency that Germany of the present day produces evidence of diminishing intellectuality, if not of downright folly, which may with reason be accepted as indicative of moral decay. One of the most recent signs of intellectual disintegration is the decision of Nazi pastors to rewrite the Bible in order that it may be brought into harmony with their anti-Jewish feelings and professed belief that Christ, after all, was not Jewish.

Details of this project has not as yet been made public but there is reason to assume, Nazi temper and rationalism being what it is, that Herr Hitler and his minions will not hesitate to add to or subtract from, or even discard altogether, the Ten Commandments, and rewrite the Sermon on the Mount.

LEGALISTIC EFFRONTERY

SOMEWHAT audacious, not to say presumptuous, is the action of the American Bar Association in creating a special committee to define publicity standards for court trials.

As constituted, this committee includes five lawyers and one lawyer-publisher. American journalism, vitally concerned

150 PROCESSING TAX SUITS FILED

WASHINGTON—More than 150 suits seeking to snare part of the one billion dollars of procession taxes have been filed in federal courts throughout the country. Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy T. Helvering estimates that 1,500,000 suits would be required to cover the disputed billion. . . . The most musical sounding name on the government roster is that of Golden W. Bell, an Assistant Solicitor General in the Justice Department. . . . Donald R. Ritchberg, one-time "Assistant President," has resumed the practice of rail labor law. He has been employed by the Railroads Brotherhoods, whom he represented before becoming a government official, to formulate legislation to protect rail workers from loss of jobs through carrier consolidation. . . . A reminder of the "horse - and - buggy" era that stood a few rods from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation office has succumbed to the machine age. An adjacent livery stable has been replaced by a garage. . . . If Al Smith makes good his threat to "take a walk" he will be following an old Democratic precedent. As far back as 1848 a walk-out occurred in a Democratic convention in New York, when two factions, the so-called Barnburners and Hunkers, became embroiled in a bitter fight over the control of the state presidential delegation.

The convention voted to divide the delegation between the two groups, whereupon the Barnburners "took a walk".

MODEL NORRIS

Senator Norris of Nebraska has found a way he can listen to Senate debate and finish his cigar at the same time. He sits in the lobby doorway, just off the floor, holds the door open with his foot, and puffs away. . . . Before the next session of Congress convenes, there will be additional elevators installed to carry visitors to Senate galleries. . . . Norris, TVA's model town, is proposing to hire a community dentist, on salary, to take care of TVA teeth. . . . Senator Pittman thought he had lost a silver plaque valued at $800. It is an ornamented silver disk, replica of the Aztec calendar, given to the silver Senator by E. Plutarco Calles of Mexico. It disappeared when Pittman asked to have it polished by his messenger. Pittman led a frantic search, found it in a drawer of his Foreign Relations Committee table.

Most newspapermen will incline to the view that, until the legal profession puts its own house in order, the press can scarcely be subjected to recommendation or orders imposed from the outside.

In comparison with the average run of shysters and ambulance chasers, practicing journalists represent the acme of ethical conduct. Legalistic clowning, moreover, is responsible for a vast majority of abuses perpetrated in the name of justice.

Friends of Mrs. Huey Long are advising her to keep her eighteen-year-old daughter, Rose, from talking too much.

NOT QUITE. You came here, you know," remarked Selwyn Marsh when Thora said she had reached the end of her story about her past. "Why, yes. After I sent Eric home. . . . I thought his mother would want to know. I tried to find something to do. It wasn't very easy because I had no references. I didn't know anybody. I tried all sorts of places. Then, one day, I happened to see Miss Taggart's ad in the paper and it occurred to me that I had been overlooking my best chance. So I went there."

"I had to tell you this, Mr. Marsh, to try to make you understand that you mustn't do . . . what you think you're going to. I know what it will mean to Wilma. . . . and she's so young. Don't you see?"

"Umph." Selwyn swung around in his chair and stared down at the sleeping dachshund for a long minute. When he raised his eyes, there was a quizzical light in them. "I'll tell you what I'll do, Miss Dahl. I'll strike a bargain with you."

"I am not sure I should," Thora reflected. "It's not fair to Miss Marsh."

"Fair?" Selwyn snorted. "She doesn't know what that means! Why, she had the nerve to come in here today and tell me that she had invited this bouncer to my house . . . that he would show up almost any time now! That's what started it all. Coolest thing I ever heard of. She acted as if she thought I'd kiss him!"

Thora smiled in spite of herself. "What is the name of this dreadful person . . . who is coming to see you?"

"I'll never tell you," Selwyn growled. "It's something like . . . Barabhas."

There was a distinct twinkle in the blue eyes now.

"That is what gave you a bad impression, Mr. Marsh?"

"No, it isn't. I don't like him and don't intend to. But if you have decided he's coming, you may as well fix a room for him. Make it as far from mine as you can. And you'd better talk it over with Wilma. Just tell her it's all right, as far as I'm concerned."

"But I think Miss Marsh should make the arrangements," Thora objected. "I have not decided to stay."

"I've decided," Selwyn explained. "It's all settled. Whatever you do"

will be all right. . . . Just leave me out of it. You tell Wilma I said so. Don't bother me any more. . . . I'll be laid enough, later."

This just was said so dismissively that there was nothing left for Thora to do but leave the room. She was confused over this latest turn of events. It all had worked out so differently than she had expected. Her own story had come out in a pent-up rush, with but one reason or hope—to try to keep Mr. Marsh from doing so unjust a thing to his daughter. To save Wilma from the hardship she herself had endured at the hands of a stubborn father. She had succeeded. . . . with totally unexpected results, as far as her own status was concerned.

Moved by a sudden impulse, she mounted the stairs and walked directly to Wilma's door.

"Come in," said a muffled voice, in answer to the housekeeper's tap on the panel.

Wilma must have been lying across the bed. When Thora first went to her, she was propped up on one hand. Her eyes were swollen and her face flushed. A wadded handkerchief was clutched in her free hand.

"Well, what do you want?" she demanded, when she saw who her caller was. Thora was struck anew with the resemblance of the girl to her father. That question, that trick of frowning. . . .

"I'm sorry to disturb you, Miss Marsh," she began quietly. "But Mr. Marsh was just telling me that you expected a guest very soon. I was going to suggest the east room, but I thought I would like to ask you first." The room in question was across the hall from Selwyn's, at a safe distance.

Wilma stared for a moment without replying. She rose to her feet and came forward slowly.

"Did my father say who the guest was?" she demanded.

Thora assumed the role of the well-trained housekeeper. In self-defense, this time.

"I'm sorry, but Mr. Marsh seemed unable to recall the name. He said it was a gentleman."

"He said that?" Wilma's dark eyes widened. "Are you sure?"

"Quite. In fact . . . he said the gentleman was your fiancé. Will it be all right if I prepare the east room for Mr. . . ."

"Barabhas," Wilma supplied mechanically.

"Now, I know that is the one whom Mr. Marsh meant," Thora remarked which will be confusing from April through July. You should endeavor to understand another's viewpoint.

Poems That Live

A DOUBTING HEART

Where are the swallows fed?
Frozen and dead
Perchance upon some bleak and stormy shore.
O doubting heart!
Far over purple seas
They wait, in sunny ease,
The balmy southern breeze,
To bring them to their northern homes once more.

Why must the flowers die?
Prisoned they lie
In the cold tomb, heedless of tears or rain.
O doubting heart!
They only sleep below
The soft white ermine snow
While winter winds shall blow,
To breathe and smile upon you soon again.

The sun has hid its rays
These many days;
Will dreary hours never leave the earth?
O doubting heart!
The storm clouds on high
Veil the same sunny sky
That soon (for spring is nigh)
Shall wake the summer into golden mirth.

Fair hope is dead, and light
Is quenched in night.
What sound can break the silence of despair?
O doubting heart!
The sky is overcast,
Yet stars shall rise at last.
Brighter for darkness past,
And angels' silver voices stir the air.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

EACH LOST A GAME

IT FREQUENTLY is of vital importance to make clear what is desired of partner. Neglect to post partner may cost game. It is of course, equally important to note what partner desires, and to rigidly carry out instructions, unless a reason for doing otherwise exists, without partner's knowledge. It was a coincidence that two similar defensive hands followed in succession. It was remarkable that carelessness, first of North, then of South, cost them two consecutive games.

West, 2-Spades; North, not vulnerable, 3-Hearts; East, 3-Spades; West, 4-Spades.
North had acknowledged his error on the previous hand, so that when he played his 3 of hearts under partner's opening lead of the Ace of hearts there was no excuse for South's mistake in continuing with that suit. He should have led a diamond. Two diamonds and two hearts would have defeated the contract, but South led his second heart, hoping to obtain a ruff, then to lead the diamond. North led a third round of hearts, but declarer ruffed high and made 4-odd.

evenly. The Q of diamonds was overtaken with dummy's K, then two added rounds of winning diamonds allowed declarer to discard his last losing spade and one of his hearts so that he just fulfilled his game contract, doubled. Had North asked for a second lead of spades the two tricks in that suit and the Ace of hearts would have defeated the contract a trick.

Bidding went: West, 1-Heart; North, 1-Spade; East, 3-Clubs; West, 3-Diamonds; East, 4-Clubs; West, 5-Clubs, that North doubled.
South led his K of spades. His partner should have played the 8, to ask a continuance of the suit, but carelessly he played the 2, asking a shift. Diamonds offered the only shift. Daintily South led his lowest diamond. East's Ace won the trick. Dummy's Q of trumps took the next trick. The K of clubs was led and overtaken with declarer's A. Bid-Ace, in case trumps failed to break in an excellent manner and covered the facts of the book in such a way that it was easily understood, and cast an entirely different light on the life of Mary Stewart and Queen Elizabeth of England than most people understand it to be. This biography was written by Stephen Zweig. The author is neither English nor Scotch, Catholic nor protestant, and can give a very unprejudiced biography. It is different from the commonly romantic ones concerning these two women that most people have read or seen in pictures.

Mary Stewart was born in 1542 and when she was six days old was crowned queen of Scotland. Henry VIII of England, and the king of France both sought the little queen in marriage to their sons in order to get possession of Scotland in a round about way, as politics played an equally important part with religion during this time. The king of France was given Queen Mary for his son. She was received with great pomp and festivity in France and there she remained for 12 years. The Prince lived one year after they were married.

Although she left France with all the formality accorded a Queen no one met her when she returned to her native Scotland. Her country was poverty stricken and a war between the two religious factors was waged constantly.

Mary's second marriage was to Henry Darnley, 23, an English nobleman. This caused a small war between Queen Elizabeth of England and Queen Mary of Scotland, but Queen Mary's army won. In June of 1566 Queen Mary gave birth to a son of Henry Darnley, James by name, who later was crowned King of England and Scotland uniting the two countries, at the age of six.

Henry Darnley was later murdered by followers of the man the Queen relied upon to help her, and later on loved, Bothwell. It was while she was in love with Bothwell that she wrote the famous "Casket Letters" to him which were hidden in a silver jewel casket. Bothwell did not love Queen Mary but led her to believe he did in order to gain power for himself. She helped murder her husband Henry Darnley in order to be free to marry Bothwell.

As time went on Queen Mary allowed herself to be kidnapped by Bothwell so consequently had to marry him to keep her honor, which of course was a planned affair by her and Bothwell in order that he might marry her. She gave up her Catholic faith and married Bothwell, who was of the reformed church. Later she was denied custody of her child, who in later years while she was held a prisoner in England refused to see her.

The fate of Bothwell was even worse than the other men that loved her. He was kept in prison for ten years and died of insanity.

During this time Queen Mary made her escape from the castle where she was held a prisoner and fled across the border into England where she sought refuge with Queen Elizabeth, who denied her this but established Mary in another castle where she lived in luxury until her death.

Mary had written the fact that she was implicated in the murder in the famous "Casket Letters" and Queen Elizabeth let the people know about it by circulating the news among them 'till they were clamoring for her death. Queen Elizabeth pretended to know nothing of the signing of the death warrant as it was mixed among other legal documents for her signature, although she had expressed the wish that she might sign it in this manner and not know when she signed.

Queen Mary was beheaded. This deed brought peace to England and Scotland. History often walks in dark paths to bring about peace. Queen Elizabeth and Mary Stewart were buried side by side in West Minister Abby, although they had never seen each other during their lives.

Tale Tales

FIRE CHIEF TALMER

WISSE added three incidents to the Tale Tale collection Saturday morning involving three local fires.

Without mentioning names the chief reported a southend resident carried the feather mattress from his burning home and threw a pitcher and washbowl out the window. During another blaze, started from hot coals falling from a stove, two residents carried the overheated stove out of the home and left the furniture inside. Both suffered burned hands.

On another occasion a resident called the department and said "My mother-in-law's house is on fire." Before firemen could ask him who he was he hung up the receiver. They checked with the telephone exchange, traced his relationship and started for the fire.

JOURNALISM (Editorial)

It is the vast and vexing problem of so many young men and women as they begin serious thought as to their life work to find a field which is not already overcrowded. Consequently the question put to all business and livelihoods is, "Is the field open?"

If this question is the acid-test of all professions let us look at journalism.

Is the field open? The answer to this question is definitely, Yes! Not only is the field of journalism open, but it leads to many other important fields which are likewise open.

First we must divide the field into two parts, writing and mechanics. Let us first look at mechanics.

What do "go to press" and "Deadline," both famous journalistic terms, imply? Of course, it implies the mechanics of journalism. It involves the linotypists, the make-up men, the pressman and the many other mechanics of the journalistic world.

Only the most skilled of workmen may fill the difficult positions in journalism. Few men are capable of being pressmen, make-up men or linotypists so, definitely the mechanics in the field of journalism hold many opportunities.

Also, this work may lead to many fine positions, for instance; skilled workmen such as pressmen may possess the powers to invent new machines or improve the old working of journalism.

But now, let us look at writing. The writer in journalism may either go into reporting or advertising. In advertising one may either advance to Editorship or to the position of Business Manager. Journalistic advertising is the best foundation for the unlimited field of advertising in the world. One may rise to great heights in advertising.

The reporter, that romantic and much discussed figure, has many opportunities. He may be either a factual writer or an editorialist, in either case he may develop into an Editor.

From the Editorship he may go into the great field of writing. From his many experiences he may become a fiction writer; or with a background of Editorial writing he may become an Essayist. Even, with his knowledge of present day occurrences, he may become an Historian.

So you may ask "Is the field of journalism open?" We reply "Not only does the great field of journalism lie ahead but it is a gateway to many other vast fields of unlimited opportunities."

LEAP YEAR PROVIDES GIRLS' OPPORTUNITY

Now is the time when the boys are a trifle worried about the girls they have considered as "steadies"; now is the time when the girls set their hats (if any) for some other B. T.s (Big Thrills). Yes Sir this is Leap Year.

What with spring in the air (though it may be ten below when this goes to press), and a young girl's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, and Feb. 29 being here (the date that really makes Leap Year be Leap Year), and the Girl Reserve Dance (to which the girls asked the boys), all the handsome young Romeos haven't a chance to keep them unless they work mighty hard.

So, boys, buck up! Hold your ground! You may lose the "one and only," if you don't watch out!

THEMES ON EVENTS

To prove that the student of C. H. S. do something more interesting than "readin', ritin' and 'rithmetic, the social civics classes have been writing themes on several phases of the movies, radio and World Peace.

The two main topics on the radio and movies were: "The affects of the radio and movies on young people," and "How they stimulate or prevent crime."

The different views taken on World peace were: "World Peace can be achieved?," and "World Peace is impossible."

QUARTET IN ACTION

As part of the entertainment for the Masonic Father and Son banquet, held Tuesday evening, a quartet from Circleville high school pleased a large audience.

The trumpet quartet was comprised of Montford Kirkwood, Dwight McCollister, Richard Moon and Vernon Walker.

The selections played were: "Sing Me a Chanty With a Ye-

G. R. REPRESENTATIVE MAY GO TO NATIONAL MEETING

Plans for attending the National Girl Reserve convention to be held in Cleveland in March were discussed at a meeting of the International group of Junior Girl Reserves Monday evening at the home of Harriet Harman.

Following the business meeting the members of the group spent the remainder of the evening playing various games.

Refreshments were served by the hostess to conclude the evening's activities.

A large percentage of the membership of the group attended the meeting.

Miss Rains, faculty advisor of the group, participated in the evening's activities.

MIAMI RELAYS ADDED TO 1936 TRACK SCHED

The 1936 track season, expected to be the best in many seasons, will get under way in Circleville High School March 20.

Besides the annual meets with Bexley, Chillicothe, and several county teams several new meets are being planned for the team.

The boys will compete in the Miami this year as well as the usual Central Buckeye and district meets.

Several local athletes, John Jenkins, Willard Friley, Don Henry, and John Griffith are expected to make this season a success.

A heavy intramural schedule has been planned this year including several class meets.

SENIORS LEAD IN CLASS BASKETBALL LEAGUE

As the Intramural basketball season opens into the wild, run down the 'home' stretch the seniors have the inside track with a clean slate.

This week the best individual performance of the season was turned in by the Sophomore Captain Dick Mader.

While the sophomore trounced the juniors 13 to 3 Dick opened up by scoring eleven of his teams thirteen points by dropping in four baskets and three fouls.

Dick also kept his team together and completely baffled the defense.

The same evening the league leading seniors kept up their winning way by beating the freshmen by a score of 11 to 7.

Much may be said for the stubborn little freshman that may yet develop into the "dark horse" of the current season.

"Pinkie" Reichelderfer again favored the Frosh boys by putting one in their basket. This is the second time "Pink" has given the freshman two points. He did it several weeks ago.

Tournament time is nearly here and the sports thermometer has hit a new high.

DEBATE SQUAD HOLDS PARTY AT COUNTRY CLUB

The Pickaway Country club was the scene of the Debate Squad party Wednesday evening.

A three course chicken dinner was served the debaters as the initial event of the evening.

Over their coffee the members of the group discussed the high lights of the present debating season and plans for next year's debating activities were outlined.

The debate teams devoted the remainder of the evening to games and dancing.

The party completed Circleville high school's first year of participation in the Ohio High School Debating league.

NEW OFFICE GIRLS

Party Hostess and Charlotte Cook, juniors, have been added to the principal's office staff, and Louise Bowman, Junior, is a new member of the staff in the superintendent's office.

Due to the fact that most of the girls working in these offices will be graduating this year, three new girls have been selected.

They began their duties last week and are proving to be very capable of doing the work.

PARTY IS DISCUSSED

Plans for their coming party were discussed at the meeting of the Variety group of the Girl Reserves and at the home of Evelyn Wade Wednesday evening.

STUDENT OPINION

Which subject or subjects offered in C. H. S. do you consider the most useful to the student?

Frank Grant, Sealer:

I think mathematics is the most important because you have to use mathematics no matter what you do. It is used in every vocation.

Jessie Dreshbach, Juniper:

English. We use English more than we use any other subject. Good English is necessary in almost every position obtainable.

Russell Ward, Junior:

Social Civics brings present day problems before the student and makes him think. All sides of every question are considered. This is good training for future work.

Daphne Elliott, Sophomore:

English and Latin are the most valuable subjects, because one must be able to express oneself when speaking with other people. Latin helps us express what we wish to say in English.

Betty Bach, Freshman:

Typing is best for the student. This subject can be used with almost every business. Everyone can use their ability to type in some manner, therefore, typing aids more people than most other subjects.

Many individual projects will be on display. These will represent the various classes, groups and organizations. Work on these undertakings has already been begun.

ASHVILLE, NEW HOLLAND MEET IN CAGE FINAL

Both Teams Victorious in Friday's Semifinal Games, 30-9, 29-21

Holland coach, will use Speakman and Hosler at forwards, Landman at the tipoff spot, and Herb Dennis and Chuck Ater at guards.

The girls' finals will start at 7 o'clock with the third place boys' game between Pickaway-twp and Muhlberg-twp an hour later. The championship game will start as near 9 o'clock as possible.

In Friday evening's girls game, Ashville defeated Darby-twp 21 to 8 to win third place.

Teams Start Slowly

Ashville boys had an easy time with Muhlberg after a slow start. Neither team scored in the first period but in the second Ashville opened up to take a 10-1 lead with Wimpy Walden, freshman guard, slipping loose under the net for three buckets. Dean's free toss was the only Darbyville point.

The second half saw Muhlberg unable to stop Chuck Young, the Ashville center hitting the hoop for six buckets. The third period ended 20-1.

In the final session, with Ashville's reserves in the game, Muhlberg scored four buckets with Diz Dean and Buck Ankrom each hitting twice from the court.

Muhlberg played a fighting and clean game but was unable to cope with the superior passing of the Ashville team.

New Holland was forced to turn on the heat the whole way to put down the battling Pickaway Pirates.

Warner's Tough

Pickaway took a 4-3 lead in the first period when Anderson and Dunkle hit the hoop. Herb Dennis kept New Holland in the game with one from the field and one from the charity line. The second quarter saw New Holland sweep into the lead, 12-10, with Dennis scoring three more and Ater, Speakman and Hosler connecting for goals.

Warner, Pickaway's mite-sized center, put on one of the finest defensive exhibitions in the tournament when he held big Ev Landman, who stood head and shoulders above him without point. Every time a pass went Landman's direction Warner was there, too.

Herb Dennis and Pee-wee Speakman turned on the third quarter to boost New Holland's margin to seven points and the final saw Pickaway making desperate but futile attempt to keep pace.

Dennis, a guard, and Speakman, a forward, tallied 22 of New Holland's 29 points. Pickaway's scoring was evenly divided.

Ashville girls outplayed Darby-twp from the go with Esther Ward and Maxine Young hitting the hoop for 13 and six points. Kuhlwein cashed in a two-pointer in the first half at a time when it was needed. Ward, Ashville's captain divided her scoring seven and six, the larger number in the first period.

Skinner was outstanding for the losing team.

Babb Forced to Limit

Kroger Babb, referee, was kept on his toes during the entire evening with the New Holland-Pickaway game keeping the pressure on from start to finish.

About This And That In Many Sports

Spring Grid Drills

Coach Jack Landrum of Circleville high school intends to get a line on his gridlers before the season opens next fall—He's called spring football practice to start March 9—All boys who intend to play football next school year are to report—Those seeking manager's jobs should make their appearance, too, but what we want is more football players and fewer managers—If some healthy-looking lad reports as a manager, you can bet your nickles Jack Landrum's going to have him in a football uniform ***

Monroe Daddy of Stars

What a basketball team this would have been—Four of the best cagers in the county attended the Monroe-twp school together in the grades—Now they are in four different schools—The youths are Young of Ashville, Hanson of Williamsport, Deas of Muhlberg, and Long of Monroe. ***

Herman Kauber Visits

Herman Kauber, former Williamsport, and brother of the Ashville mentor, attended the game Friday evening—He is now coaching at Dresden ***

Pickaway-co Team Out

The Pickaway-co team at Ohio State university took it on the chin this week when it met a superior Tuscarawas-co team—The score was 21-9  Riker starred for the Tuscarawas crew while Graves did most of the local scoring—The defeat eliminates the Pickaway team from any further chance at the campus title ***

Ashville Cheers

One of the real features of the tournament this year is this: Before the New Holland-Pickaway game last night the Ashville cheering section gave a yell for New Holland—Naturally Ashville didn't want New Holland to win but the cheer showed a lot of sportsmanship ***

Of Ashville Girls

The outstanding job of coaching this year—Here it is: Ashville girls—Miss Casteel, new coach, was faced with a real problem when she took over her duties—Every one of the six girls on last year's team was lost by graduation—Material was inexperienced but the team made the tournament and won third place ***

STATE TO MEET ILLINOIS CAGERS

Bucks Have Chance to Gain Tie in Standing

COLUMBUS, Feb. 29.—(UP)—Ohio State and Illinois, beyond championship consideration but each with hopes of finishing third in the current Big Ten basketball race, meet here tonight.

Illinois has won six conference games and lost four to tie with Michigan for the present hold on third place. Ohio with an even break in ten contests is one game to the rear.

In their first game at Champaign, the Bucks and Illinois played one of the weirdest contests in Western conference history. Ohio was the victor by an 18 to 13 score.

The five Illinois will start against Ohio will have Harry Combes and Jim Vopica at the forward; Bob Riegel at center; Wib Henry and Howard Braun at guards.

Combes is one of the conference's leading scorers. Riegel made the all-Big Ten team a season ago as a sophomore.

Against this group Coach Harold Olson will start his regular quintet of Captain Warren Whitlinger and Jim McDonald at forwards; Earl Thomas at center, and "Tippy" Dye and Jack Radebaugh at the guards.

Since Illinois and Ohio started their basketball series, the Illini have had a decided edge, winning 24 of the 36 contests played.

MIAMIA FIVE HAS CHANCE TO END BEARCAT HOPES

COLUMBUS, Feb. 29.—Miami university will attempt to wreck the University of Cincinnati's hopes for an undisputed Buckeye conference basketball championship when the quintets meet tonight at Oxford in a contest that headlines a 10 game schedule involving state teams.

Beaten 36 to 34 in an earlier game at Cincinnati, Miami faces the task of accomplishing a feat it hasn't been able to turn since the Buckeye was formed, namely, beating the Bearcats at Oxford.

A victory for Cincinnati tonight would give Coach Tay Brown's five the title. However, if the Bearcats lose Ohio Wesleyan can tie for the championship if it defeats the University of Dayton Monday at Delaware.

CONFERENCE TO DISCUSS SPEARS, MEANWELL CASE

CHICAGO, Feb. 29.—(UP)—The recent dismissal of Dr. Clarence W. Spears, head football coach, and Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, athletic director, by university of Wisconsin regents was expected to be discussed today by the Western conference faculty committee.

The question was whether the regents violated a big ten rule by overriding recommendations of the Wisconsin faculty committee on athletics. The Wisconsin faculty group had recommended the retention of Meanwell and the dismissal of Spears.

Dean George A. Works of Chicago, chairman of the conference committee, predicted two weeks ago that his group would investigate the Wisconsin situation. He pointed out that a conference regulation vests control of athletics in the faculties of member schools.

Originally today's meeting was called to discuss broadcasting of Big Ten athletic events "and such other matters as may arise."

OHIOAN ESTABLISHING NEW KANSAS SHOOTING MARK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 29.—(UP)—Joe Hiestand, Hillsboro, O., today was possessor of a new record in the interstate trapshoot books. The Ohio farm boy yesterday made history in the gunning world by knocking the old record off the board in the 100 target contest of the 32nd annual interstate tournament.

Starting with two 25s and finishing with two 24s, Hiestand scored a 98, only two down. The old record of 96 was made by Frank Hughes of Chicago.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

America's favorite baritone, Lawrence Tibbett, returns to the screen in "Metropolitan," the 20th Century production, coming Sunday to the Grand theatre, as the star of a picture, that sets new high standards in musicals.

In the course of the dramatic comedy, which traces the adventures of a young singer in pursuit of fame and romance, Tibbett sings selections from the operas, "Carmen," "Pagliacci" and "The Barber of Seville," as well as a duo of popular numbers.

Romantic complications beset Tibbett's path in "Metropolitan." In love with Virginia Bruce, he cannot reveal his inclinations because. After Brady loves him. She is a temperamental prima donna, and Tibbett's fate, and that of the company, hang on her good will.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Leave all your old notions about ghosts at home when you go down to the Cliftona theatre Sunday. For the spook who walks the screen in "The Ghost Goes West," Alexander Korda's gay new romantic comedy which came to town last night, is unlike any screen ghost you ever saw. He's handsome, he's charming and he has a decided way with the ladies.

The brilliant Robert Donat, who rose to world fame overnight as "The Count of Monte Cristo" and recently scored in "The 39 Steps," plays a dual role. He is seen both as Donald Glouire, an impoverished young Scotch Highlander who is forced to sell his haunted ancestral home, and as a millionaire, played by Kenneth Pallette, diamonds and transatlantic castle to America and the ghost goes along. When the death of his ancestor begins wracking the transatlantic luxury liner, the marked resemblance to Donald gets the latter into some side-splitting entanglements. But when his sweetheart Peggy, played by Jean Parker, begins mistaking the ghost for him, Donald realizes the time for action has come.

Chinese good luck charms are becoming increasingly popular. They have worked out so well, it seems, in China.

WASHINGTON C.H. COUNCIL BARS HANDBILL PASSING

ORDINANCE FIXES FINE FOR CODE VIOLATION

Advertising Matter Declared Nuisance and Fire Hazard By Officials

Handbill passing, an annoyance to housewives and the source of numerous complaints was practically "out" in Washington C. H., today following passage of an ordinance making the offense punishable by a $5 to $50 fine unless a permit is obtained from the police justice.

The ordinance is the same as one adopted in Wilmington a number of years ago to stop the nuisance.

It follows: "That the passing of hand bills and other advertising matter of any kind from house to house in the city of Washington is an annoying, fire hazard and an annoyance to the public and the same is hereby declared to be a public nuisance.

"That for the protection of public health, peace, safety and morals, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to pass hand bills or to distribute from house to house in any manner whatsoever any advertising matter of any kind, without first obtaining written permission from the Police Justice of the City.

"That whoever violates the provisions of this ordinance shall be subject to a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $50."

ST. STERLING, Feb. 29.—Under an ordinance passed by village councilmen, it will be unlawful to erect within the limits of the fire zone any building the outer walls of which are not constructed of non-combustible material, except temporary building as may be permitted by council.

It is also unlawful to rebuild, repair, or remodel any building not used for residence purposes, within the fire zone limits, which has been damaged to the extent of 50 per cent of its value as listed for taxation on the county tax duplicate, unless the outer walls are of non-combustible material.

BURNS PROVE FATAL

CHILLICOTHE, Feb. 29.—Burns suffered nine days ago when she attempted to turn off a gas fire in an open grate resulted in the death of Miss Maud Renick Kaderia.

EDUCATOR SEES CHANGE

CHICAGO, Feb. 29.—(UP)—Modern novels such as "Arrow-smith" and "Growth of the Soil" should replace Julius Caesar in schools, John N. Washburne of Syracuse university told the Progressive Education association. The student will learn about modern social relationships elsewhere if schools continue to offer "such things as Caesar in place of vital, modern, comprehensible accounts of personal relationship," he said.

PREMIER OKADA CONFERS TODAY WITH EMPEROR

black and white ribbons were sent to Okada's home and condolences arrived from all over the world. It was recalled only tonight that the emperor had sent condolences to families of victims of the rebels but had sent no condolences to Okada's home.

Okada was at the imperial palace tonight conferring with other ministers of his government.

Suzuki Wounded

Suzuki was wounded. He was reported improving tonight. Hence the rebels killed only Korekiyo Takahashi, finance minister; Admiral Viscount Makoto Saito, lord keeper of the privy seal, and Gen. Jictaro Watanabe, inspector or general military education—or at least, they were still officially dead tonight.

Until the crisis was liquidated this afternoon, and Tokyo began returning to normal, the secret that two of the chief targets of the rebel assassins were alive was closely guarded.

Floral tributes were delivered along with condolences to the families of both.

Only tonight did the authorities permit the news to be known. Suzuki's escape was due to his own good fortune. Okada lives, and is officially confirmed as still the country's prime minister, because of the deliberate heroic sacrifice of his soldier brother-in-law who went into the garden of his home and faced the rebels' blast of fire.
